

Mrs. Vélina Élysée Charlier

Activist

One of the figures of Nou pap dòmi, and Empress of Lakou Souvenance.

Mrs. Vélina Élysée Charlier is a feminist and a Human rights activist. A member of the Noupapdòmi collective, she fights against corruption and impunity to bring social and economic change to her country, Haiti. A defender of human rights, through her political involvement she wants to encourage Haitians, especially young people, to get involved to do politics differently.

She's a mother of 4 girls and currently lives in Haiti. She studied Business Administration at Université du Québec à Montréal with a major in Marketing.